REPORT OF SCHOOL SUPERVISOR

North Haven, Conn., July 2, 1930.

To the Cheshire Town School Committee:

The following report is presented to the Town School Committee and the public for information in respect to the progress attained in the public schools of the town. The form of the report is a statement of school objectives with a review of educational accomplishment. Also progress is shown in the development of the school building program within the past ten years.

Three questions have been answered: First, what are the objectives of the modern educational program; Second, what has been accomplished in the town schools within the past ten years in respect to the modern school educational program; third, how far has the school building program progressed within the same period.

Within the past ten years public school objectives have been increased and broadened throughout the United States to meet the rapid changes in present day living. This extended school program can be carried because public opinion has been aroused to the need of supporting better schools. Teachers are better trained in our Normal Schools. Pupils are intensely interested.

The objectives of the modern school program are: First, health and physical development; Second, skill in the use of fundamentals or the three R's; Third, citizenship and character education; Fourth, clear thinking or problem solving; Fifth, individual instruction with educational and vocational guidance; Sixth, right use of leisure time and leadership; Seventh, worthy family membership.

Health and Physical Development

The school nurse, school physician, and the teachers are following a good health and physical education program, with the assistance of the Public Health Association and Parent-Teacher Association. A supervisor of physical education should be provided in the near future. The health and physical activities consist of an annual physical and mental test provided for pre-school children; a complete physical examination is given to pupils three times during their school life, in the first, fourth and eighth years; there is a daily health inspection; clinics are held for cases which need special attention; hot lunches are served; the playground is supervised; there is an annual field day; the seventh and eighth grades have inter-school and inter-town athletic contests.

Citizenship and Character Education

The highest type of citizen is the citizen who knows, accepts, and assumes personal responsibility for good citizenship. Discussions of good citizenship, student council, auditorium program, debates, participation in school government, and training in responsibility for behavior are provided in the schools.

The value of character education has always been recognized by the best teachers. However, character education has recently been accepted as a school objective. Most school subjects are partially remembered and often never used after leaving school. Ideals, habits and attitudes or traits of character formed in life, are a part of the individual himself. Success in life largely depends upon right ideals, habits and attitudes.

In our schools we have made a beginning in character education. Fifteen points of character traits have been selected and listed on the reports for ratings. The traits bear on behavior in work and play.

The best results were secured last year when parent and school worked together in strengthening the weaker traits of character. Individual conferences between pupil, parent and teacher secured excellent results. The actual facts in respect to the pupil's condition were accepted and remedial measures were effective.

Skill in Use of Fundamentals or Three R's

The importance of skill in the use of the three R's as tool subjects is not overlooked or neglected in our schools. Standard tests show that most of our pupils are above standard. All pupils are not able to reach a high standard in the use of all the three R's. This has always been true in the history of public schools. Individual instruction will remedy defects in some cases. In such cases there has been loss of time in school, or lack of interest and effort. In some cases of lack of skill there is a lack of capacity for learning the particular skill. In other cases, where capacity for learning is shown, later development of the child causes new powers of learning to develop. The school makes a careful study of these individual defects. Standard tests, daily observation, and experience with similar cases are the basis for decision. The interests of the individual child are always in mind in making decisions.

Problem Solving or Clear Thinking

Solving problems is a daily necessity in life. Elementary training is given in schools in problem solving. Facts are learned in the modern school for the purpose of answering a question or solving a problem.

Pupils are able to acquire in school some elementary ability in clear thinking or solving problems. Statements or opinions are supported by facts; right principals or rules are applied to right situations; principals are illustrated by examples; summaries are made of a body of information. Opportunity for investigation and reports, discussions, debates, and use of reference books is given in the schools.

Individual Instruction With Educational and Vocational Guidance

While social education, or learning to work and play with others, is fundamental, the modern school does not neglect the individual. Special rooms for the sub-normal, the slow normal, and for the mentally superior pupil are provided. Group instruction for pupils having common needs or interests is provided. Pupils who present special social problems are given attention. Each teacher makes case studies of ten selected pupils in her room.

Personal conferences are held with all pupils. The 7-8 grades make a study of different vocations and a special study of one or two vocations with the idea of formulating a tentative educational program.

Pupils who leave school before or at the completion of the 8th grade are advised in their choice of work or high school course according to their physical development, interests and abilities shown in the elementary school. High school and trade school progress is supervised.

Right Use of Leisure Time, and Leadership

Education should contribute to profitable use of leisure time. Vocal and instrumental music, art, club organization, games, athletics, are all activities in the school program which contribute to right use of leisure time. Profitable participation in these school activities carries over in life use of leisure time.

Many opportunities are given for training in leadership. not with the idea of making everyone a leader in all situations. Good followership is equally important. In life we lead in some situations, follow in other situations. Auditorium programs, the playground, assisting in the school government, and club work are some of the opportunities for training in leadership.

Worthy Family Membership

Little has been done in respect to this objective. Further growth of our schools with increased financial resources will be necessary before plans can be recommended. Shop work and domestic science are part of the program of larger school systems.

The special and ungraded rooms are doing good work. Girls are taught to make their clothes. Boys are taught to be handy men about the house. We hope to teach cooking to girls of the special room sometime in the future.

Progress—Building Program

In September all pupils will be housed in the school buildings at the Center. The last outside school was closed in June of this year. Ten years ago three outside schools were in use.

Within a few years a local high school will be needed. From 250 to 300 registration is an economical number for establishing a local high school. The comparative educational values of local and neighboring large high schools is an open question. Each has desirable educational values. The comparative weight of these values depends largely upon the individual pupil. There are pupils who profit by the larger field of opportunity offered by the large high school. Other pupils need closer supervision and individual attention offered by the smaller local high school. The large high school offers wide opportunity of choice and responsibility; the small high school offers closer supervision and individual attention. The median sized high school, 600 to 700 pupils, offers to the average pupil, to a large degree, the best factors of both the small and the large high school.

SCHOOL NURSES' REPORT

June 1, 1929 to June 1, 1930.

The School Health Program Aims:

- To apply the laws of healthful living to the education of the child.
- To protect the physical and mental health of the child while at school by maintaining a school environment in strict accordance with the known laws of sanitation and hygiene.
- To detect early in the school life of the child, any physical defects or conditions which may retard normal growth and development and educational progress, to inform the parents of the existence of such defects or conditions and to encourage the adoption of measures for their correction.
- To establish early in the school preventive measures that will lessen the incidence of communicable diseases among the children.
- To give the child by training and instruction a correct set of personal health and safety habits, a properly functioning body and an understanding of the hygiene conduct of life.

In addition to the above work Physical examinations were given the children in first, fourth and eighth grades. Total number, 107. By Dr. Denison, 54; by Dr. Moore, 53, at which a number of parents were present. Many defects were found, the parents notified and corrections were made.

At the request of the Parent-Teachers Association, Dr. Ingraham and her co-workers of the State Department of Health with Drs. Denison and Moore, conducted a successful "Round-up" of pre-school children in July when the children had a thorough physical examination—48 in number. There were many and varied defects found and it is most gratifying to me to report that through the close co-operation of the parents a majority of the defects had been corrected before the children entered school.

I have attended quite a number of conferences which were most inspiring and helped me in my work.

Respectfully submitted,

HELEN A. BRUGER, R. N.

REPORT OF HEALTH OFFICER

Cheshire, Conn., Sept. 1, 1930.

Honorable Board of Selectmen:

My report for year ending Sept. 1, 1930, consists of school inspections, nuisance abatements, reporting of contagious diseases, of which mumps led the list, there being other sporadic cases of scarlet fever, measles, etc., as well as tuberculosis and cancer.

All children attending school have been successfully vaccinated and physical examinations have been made of all children entering school this year, and parents notified of defects found, many of which have been corrected.

In general the sanitary condition of the town is good.

Respectfully submitted,

CHARLES N. DENISON, M. D.

Health Officer.
